

MEDICARING® COMMUNITIES

Making it Safe to Grow Old

When we are old and frail we need a different care system. Here is how we can build it:

1

Recognize that frail older adults have unique medical and long-term care needs.

2

Develop comprehensive care plans that reflect personal goals and service needs.

3

Help frail older adults get the most appropriate medical services.

4

Assist elders and their family caregivers to get the long-term care services they need in their home.

5

Develop MediCaring Communities that deliver and manage services to reflect elders' goals and local priorities.

6

Save taxpayers money by reinvesting health care savings in better long-term care services in the community.

1. Frail older adults are Medicare beneficiaries with 2 or more activities of daily living (ADLs), dementia, or 80+ years of age
2. Longitudinal, elder-driven care plans would include quality of life goals and treatment preferences, including advance directives
3. More efficient, person-centered medical care tailored to frail elders (mainly at home)
4. Services include both health care and long-term care supports
5. MediCaring community program is accountable to enrolled elders and the local community
6. Savings from reducing low-value health care would be used for care operations and improved, expanded long-term care services
